For the Maryland Gazette.

Consistency is a pretty thing, and men ought to possess more of it than those who set themselves up as actors and teachers of the people, for there are always dozens of us simple folks, who notice their actions, and are readily willing to remind them of slightest departure which they make from what they formerly insisted upon as right and laudable, and abuse other people for not doing. Now, it is a sad pity our Democrats are not a little more consistent, if they were, it is to be presented, after denouncing every man in Maryland as a "Tory" who hipped to be opposed to spending the furthering in the treasury in support of the late war, and in paying state's quota of the direct tax, they would not at this moment turn around and say, that Federalists are "scoundrels" for having advanced, during the sum of 300,000 dollars to the general government for express purpose of paying the manly who had gallantly turned to fight battles, which the "life fortune gentry," tho' pledged to it, skulked from.

A Simple Poor Man.

For the Maryland Gazette.

Printer,
Suppose the Treasury was really in the bad state which certain officers and other deceptions from motives of interest represent, and the people were to call democratic legislators to an account for their attempt to place it in worse condition by their moti-o raise their pay to five dollars day, would those Democratic legislators try to huddle out of the pe by saying four dollars each was not enough to furnish them a "HOT TODDY?"

CONSISTENCY.

During the late war the executive of Massachusetts either neglected or refused ordering out the militia of that state, for which he received the United Maledictions & curses of every Democrat in the country. The papers devote to the party now liberally lavish their vengeance slanders on the federal militia, and paying them their services. The impossible state of the Treasury of Maryland, appears to be the burden, fruitful theme of Democratic frivolity. Who declared the War?
The Democratic party. Who ordered out the militia of Maryland for the protection of the State? A Federal Governor. Who paid them their services? The Federal Executive. Who now with black in-imagination raise a hue and cry against Federalists, and accuse them of deriding the state bankrupt? The Democratic party. Those modest democrats it is, who proclaim to the ignorant and uninformed, the ruinous state of the finances of Maryland. Eight or ten dollars per month paid to the poor militia man for his services, sufferings, and prisons, according to the creed of the disinterested patriots, has induced the state of Maryland in innumerable and irreparable ruin! Freedom of Maryland, discard from your fidelity the leeches, asps & cockatrice-species, who would thus destroy, with the sole view of fattering on the public Treasury.

They have now succeeded in sustaining a general belief that the policy of this state has been so managed by the federalists, as to entirely empty.

I deny the fact, and it should plainly and plumply contradicted by us all; for, if the general government has not been so badly managed by the democrats at Winnington as to be unable to pay its debts, the state of Maryland will paid a very large sum acknowledged to be due it; and our treasury be, nay is full.

If the whole sum advanced by state of Maryland is not refused by the general government, why that is to be inferred from the democrats, who declared war and compose that government determined that the people the states who defended themselves should also bear a portion of the expense incurred in the defence others.

This may be the justice and generosity of the democratic general government, to rob the treasury and people of Maryland of its hard earnings, but surely the government of Maryland, who not the means of compelling it repay us, did act wisely and economic ally, in discharging this duty for the people's defence, and was better to call out and pay militia, than suffer the state to be overrun and pillaged by the enemy, which the people would have lost ten times as much, besides the character for courage and honor.

I do not know for what purpose money is treasured up by states people in time of peace if not to secure their defence and safety time of war. But I would ask, my turn, whether the democratic while they governed Maryland, not fool away much of the people's treasure in erecting state buildings at Baltimore, whilst they had their power to erect charity schools and roads and bridges without but which they neglected? I am opposed to the erection of penitentiaries or hospitals, nor would I vil at the employment of democratic artists exclusively in building them, but I shrewdly suspect there was more money expended than necessary, because there was not authority to control the expenditure on the part of the state.

As much as at least, might have been saved then, in my opinion, as has been since taken from us by the general government.

To return, however, to the further in the treasury—what were they during the democratic state government? I answer, certificates of S. stock. What are they now? To promise to pay on the part of the same United States—and the difference is, that which may be thought to exist between the word and the bond of a solvent person and that of a bankrupt state. But there is the security of the constitution and the law, in both cases, and the personal signature of a chief or secretary, cannot add much to the solidity of the fund.

N. B.—Dean Ogle is brother to the late regal Governor of Maryland, and enquired much after that family in Maryland, as his nearest kindred.
"As Ogle was questioning Lord Euston, as to the fact then stated in the daily papers, about the two epistles which passed between the duke of Dorset and Lord Euston. He, the duke, having help-to the post chaise, from the queen's palace, and laying his injunction of Lord Euston to write from the first stage, and you will meet a

The return post chaise brought the duke of Dorset the following:
"I am the happiest dog alive."
Yours,
EUSTON."

And he met at Gretna Green the following answer:
"Every dog has his day."
Yours,

"Mr. Sheridan, always ready at repartee, mentioned his seeing

FOREIGN.

New-York, Aug. 17.
LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

The ship Triton, Captain Holcomb, arrived at Boston on Friday last, on 37 days from Liverpool, bringing London dates to the 4th of July, and Liverpool to the 6th, both inclusive. To Mr. Hooper, our attached Correspondent in Boston, we are indebted for Billings's Liverpool Advertiser of the 6th of July, and for extracts from Lloyd's List, and other Marine intelligence.

The Queen of England was visited in the latter part of June, with another return of her disorder, and continued seriously ill at our last dates.

On the 1st of July, their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Kent, with their suite, arrived in carriages at Claremont, the son of Prince Leopold, who was in business with his attendants to receive his Royal Sister and her Husband.

The Dowager Queen of Wirtemberg was expected to arrive in England about the 20th of July.
Baron Wintzingerode, General of Cavalry, and Adjutant General in the Russian service, died on the 10th of June. He was on a visit to his relations in Weisbaden, and was in perfect health; and at early hour on the day above mentioned, he was found sitting under a fruit tree, without any sign of life, in the attitude of a person in a gentle slumber."

The French government has arranged to maintain a naval squadron on the coast of Africa, for the object of enforcing the abolition of the slave trade.

A Decree has been issued by the King of Spain, suspending, until preparatory regulations shall have been adopted, the Decree establishing certain free ports, or ports of deposit, in that kingdom.
On the execution of Arbuthnot and Ambristie, the London Courier, a Ministerial paper, thus remarks:—"If they were really guilty of the crime with which they stood accused, their fate was such as the law of nations warrants. But as to the idea of their being emissaries of the British government, it is too ridiculous a supposition to be seriously refuted."

It is stated, that a duel with sabres was lately fought at Lisbon, by an English officer and a Portuguese nobleman, in which neither was materially injured. It is added, that "the nobleman afterwards employed five or six ruffians to assassinate the English officer and his second, but they failed in the attempt."

The papers are filled with Election news. The contest is conducted with unusual animosity in many parts of England and Ireland, and in some parts of the latter the result has been highly tragical. Among the extracts given below, will be found some account of a riotous attack upon Mr. Grattan in Dublin, in which he was seriously injured, and a short speech delivered by the celebrated Counsellor Phillips, by which the riot was suppressed. At Westminster, Sir Samuel Romilly and Sir Francis Burrell, were returned by large majorities. Orator Hunt, after all his exertions, could muster but 84 votes. At Liverpool, Mr. Canning and Gen. Gascoyne were re-elected. A. W. Moorehead, Mr. Brougham, the leader of the opposition in the last House of Commons, lost his election. Finding himself greatly outnumbered, he withdrew from the contest on the evening of the fourth day of balloting. It is said that the opposition will obtain an accession in the House of Commons of between 20 and 30 members.

From the Dublin Evening Post.
This day (Mon-30) the Election for the city of Dublin came on at the Sessions house in Green-street.
Mr. Grattan was proposed by Mr.
Latouche, and seconded by Mr.
Guinness. Mr. Shaw was proposed by the Lord Mayor, and seconded by Mr. Ball, the banker. There was no opposition, and scarcely forty electors present. Both gentlemen made speeches, and were very ill received by their audience.

Outrage on Mr. Grattan, 2 o'- clock.—We regret exceedingly to state, that the populace broke out into acts of open outrage against their Representatives. A chair of considerable value, highly decorated, was prepared for the Representatives, but from the moment they appeared, they were received with hisses and groans. They had not proceeded twenty paces up Henry street, when a violent assault commenced. The flag bearers, in the front of the car, were attacked with great fury, and were obliged to convert their flag staves into weapons of defence. The battle, however, was short. Missiles began to fly in all directions, and we have to state, with a mixture of indignation and horror, that Mr. Grattan received a contusion in the forehead; he was obliged to descend from the car, which was instantly torn into atoms. The Right Hon. Gentleman took shelter in a house in Mary-street, and Mr. Shaw retired also.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.
Dublin Evening Post Office, three o'clock.
The people in immense multitudes continued to collect around the house of Mr. Preston, (where Mr.
Grattan took refuge) assuming every moment a more determined and ferocious appearance.

Mr. Guinness, Mr. Grattan, junior, and others, addressed them from the window, but it appeared to produce only the tranquillity of a moment.
Lord Charlemont, and a number of other Gentlemen appeared at the window, when Mr. Phillips was recognized in the street by the multitude, who immediately insisted that he should address them. He was accordingly admitted into the house, and he, Mr. Guinness, and Lord Charlemont stood together upon the platform beneath the window.— When silence was restored, Mr.
Phillips spoke in substance nearly as follows.

My fellow countrymen, you know well that I feel for the humblest man amongst you.—(Cries of we do, we do.)—and you know also what I feel for my country.—(Cries of bravo.) In the name, then, of the character, not merely of that humblest man, but of that country also, I call on you to redeem both from the stain which this day's abominable turpitude has cast upon it. You have wronged, and I know them—I feel them—but in the name of God, wreak these wrongs upon your enemies, and not upon your zealous and indefatigable friend. Remember, he it was that gave you a Constitution —and remember too, if all were like him, my poor countrymen would still have a country. (Applause.) Here do I, one of yourselves, address you, in behalf of yourselves —in behalf of the Man of the People, and standing by the son of that glorious Charlemont whom I emphatically call the Nobleman of the People. (Here there was an universal burst of applause, and Lord Charlemont repeatedly made his acknowledgments.) Remember 1782.

Remember the period of the abominable Union! and prove by your conduct now, that you do not forget those times. (We will, we will.)
There is only one way of doing it.
Do not insist on Mr. Grattan's being brought forth; feeble, as his surgeon tells me he is, with the dust and heat of this immense multitude —(shouts)—prove the necessity of his enthusiasm by acts, not words.
Come, give him three hearty cheers, and then let every man go peaceably home.

This address happily produced its effect.—The whole multitude gave 3 distinct cheers, and in a few minutes there was not a trace of the frightful uproar which had so terrified the neighbourhood.

Mr. Grattan retired, quite exhausted, to his carriage, which waited for him at the extremity of the A. bey-lane. He was attended by Mr. H. Bushe, Mr. Grattan, junior, Mr. Guinness, Lord Charlemont, &c.

farm whereon he now resides, at Public Auction, on Wednesday the 23d day of September next, at Mr. William Brewer's Tavern in the City of Annapolis, at 3 o'clock,

This farm lies on the north side of Se-from the city of Annapolis, adjoining the farm of Nicholas Brice, Esquire; containing 625 acres; is considered by provement by clover; plaster is found to act with great power. The improvements are comfortable, a good dwelling house, with necessary out buildings. A great proportion of this land is cover-will be shewn at any time by the sub-
